

This is the “teaching song” I wrote for this class, especially for learning about chord substitutions. When we transpose a song to a new key, not only do the chords change - the melody moves up or down as well! Here is my teaching song in all the keys. Note that, because each version of the song has a “key signature,” the individual notes are not marked sharpened or flat - that’s what the key signature is for.

